Applications on mobile devices may transmit information to Sloan about your location when you request information from the Sites. We may use that information to improve the products and services we provide to you.

When you use a Sloan mobile application (“Mobile App”), we collect and use information about you in the same way and for the same purposes as we do when you use our Sites. In addition to this, we also use some other information that we collect automatically when you use our Mobile Apps. We collect information about Mobile App functionality that you access and use, which allows us to identify those areas of the Mobile App that are of interest to our users so that we can continuously improve our Mobile App, and to identify the products with which you interact, the locations thereof and the settings, adjustments and changes that you make thereto. The information we collect for this purpose enables us to indirectly identify you.

Each Mobile App also sends us the device’s Unique Device Identifier (or “UDI”), a sequence of numbers or characters that are unique to your mobile device and may be your mobile telephone number. We use this UDI in connection with every action you take when operating and using the Mobile App. When you use a Mobile App, you can choose to allow access to your current location – provided by your mobile device using GPS or similar technologies – in order to identify nearby events or places of interest. If you choose to allow access, this location data may be collected anonymously and logged by our servers. You can disable the Mobile App’s access to your location at any time through your phone settings menu.

Each Mobile App will also send us error-reporting information in the event that it crashes or hangs or the product with which the Mobile App facilitates connection is faulty, reports errors or is adjusted outside its allowable parameters, which enables us to investigate the error and to improve the stability of the Mobile App and the products for future releases. As part of these error reports, the Mobile App sends us information about the mobile device and product type and version, the UDI, the time the error or adjustment occurred, the feature being used, and the state of the application and product when the error or adjustment occurred.

You cannot control all the information that a Mobile App sends to us, but to the extent available you may change the available settings of the Mobile App under its “settings” menu, or changing the available settings of your mobile device. Alternatively, you can remove the Mobile App from your mobile device entirely.

Your Privacy Rights Under the CCPA

As a California resident consumer, professional, employee or job applicant, in addition to the right to know what personal information we collect, use, disclose and sell (previously discussed above), you are also afforded

1. the right to have your personal information deleted;
2. the right to have your personal information corrected;
3. the right to have your personal information transferred to a designated third party, i.e. right to data portability, and a right to receive a copy of your personal information;
4. the right to limit the use and disclosure of your sensitive personal information (e.g., only to have use of such information limited to providing you with the products and services that you have requested);
5. the right to opt-out of any sale of your personal information to a third party; and
6. the right not to be discriminated against should you exercise any of your CCPA rights.

Please note that your right to know, right to delete, the right to correct, the right of data portability and/or the right to limit may be subject to one or more limited exceptions, including but not limited to the following: we cannot verify you; we may not be required to provide you access to all of the specific pieces of information we have collected about you due to the sensitive nature of the information; we cannot honor your request to delete or limit information in certain circumstances. For example, we are not required to delete or limit information that is necessary to complete a requested transaction, to detect security incidents, the request interferes with our legal obligations or legal rights or for certain other internal purposes.

Selling your personal information and the right to opt-out of any sale of your personal information to a third party (discussed further below) may also be subject to (or not applicable to) certain limited exceptions such as if the selling or sharing of personal information is made to one of our service providers who is using such information in order to help us provide our products and/or services or such sharing or selling is necessary for us to comply with our legal obligations or to exercise our legal rights.

Submitting Your CCPA Right Requests

If you are a California resident consumer, professional, employee or job applicant, you or your legally authorized agent acting on your behalf may submit your CCPA personal information requests by emailing us at dpo@sloan.com or by calling us at the following toll free number: 888-756-2612. To exercise your right to limit the use of your sensitive personal information, such as limiting use of such information solely to provide you with the products or services that you requested, you can simply click on the "Limit The Use Of My Sensitive Personal Information" link here or click on the "Limit The Use of My Sensitive Personal Information" link that is displayed on the Sloan web site home page.

Identity Verification for Privacy Rights Requests. To protect your privacy and prevent unauthorized access to your personal information, we use a risk-based approach to verify your identity: For Low-Risk Requests (such as requests to know categories of information): We may verify your identity using information you previously provided to us, such as your email address and account user name. Verification typically takes 1-2 business days. For Medium-Risk Requests (such as requests for specific pieces of information): We may require additional verification such as matching your request to recent transaction details or account activity. Verification typically takes 3-5 business days. For High-Risk Requests (such as deletion requests or requests involving sensitive information): We may require more robust verification, including government-issued ID verification or multi-factor authentication. Verification may take up to 10 business days. Process Timeline: We will acknowledge receipt of your request within 10 business days. We will provide a substantive response within 45 calendar days of verification. If we need additional time, we will notify you and may extend our response by an additional 45 days. If we cannot verify your identity using reasonable means, we will explain what additional information is needed and provide you with an opportunity to provide it. All verification procedures are provided at no cost to you.

You can also designate an authorized agent to make a CCPA rights request to us on your behalf. When you use an authorized agent to submit a CCPA rights request, you must provide the authorized agent with written permission to do so, and, in certain circumstances, we may ask you to verify your own identity directly with us. We may deny a request from an authorized agent who does not submit proof that they have been authorized by you to act on your behalf.

Selling Your Personal Information

We do not sell personal information for direct monetary compensation. However, some of our data sharing practices described in this policy may be considered 'selling' under the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA). These may include sharing information with business partners for marketing purposes or with analytics providers who provide us with valuable insights in return. California residents have the right to opt out of such sales as described below. If we do, you are afforded the right to opt-out of any sale or sharing of your personal information for value and you may opt-out by clicking on the "Do Not Sell My Personal Information" link here, the "Do Not Sell My Personal Information" link that is displayed on the Site home page, by emailing us at dpo@sloan.com or by calling us at the following toll-free number: 888-756-2612. Except as otherwise indicated, the information sharing that we do is so that we can provide you with the products and services that you have requested we provide to you.

Responding to California Consumer Privacy Requests

When you make a CCPA rights request, we must first verify your identity using other non-sensitive personal information that we may have on file for you except when you exercise your right to opt out of the selling of your personal information. When you request to opt out of the selling of your personal information, we must honor your request even if you have not established an account with us. But for the other rights, in order for us to process your request, you must provide the information we request as part of the verification process, such as your contact information and an additional non-sensitive personal information identifier based on your relationship with us. Before we process your request, we will match these data points with data points we currently maintain to verify your identity and your relationship with us.

We also reserve the right not to respond to or to deny a request to know or a request to allow access to or deletion of your information or to limit your rights under certain circumstances (e.g. if the request poses an unreasonable risk, we are lawfully entitled to do so, we are lawfully entitled to maintain an archive copy of your information despite a request to delete, if it is necessary to detect security incidents or if the rights of another individual might be violated, or if the request requires that we or our vendor, user or partner undertake a search or provide an accessible format when the information that is the subject of the request does not lend itself to a search or does not lend itself to the format being requested by the individual making the request). In some instances, this may mean that we and our vendor(s), other(s) and business partners are able to retain your personal information even if you withdraw your consent or if a California resident consumer, professional, employee or job applicant, we and our vendor(s), other user(s) and business partner(s) can maintain an archive copy of your personal information on a backup system notwithstanding a request to delete your personal information. Moreover, we have the legal obligation not to transmit to you or others certain information deemed highly sensitive (assuming that we even have such information) but we should always be able to provide you with information about whether we have such highly sensitive information about you.

Unless we are designated as the Service Provider under the CCPA, please do not submit personal information requests to any of our vendors, users or business partners as they may not necessarily be required to respond to personal information requests that they may receive directly from our customer or clients. When you make a legitimate CCPA rights request, we will communicate that request to our appropriate Service Providers who are acting on our behalf so that they will similarly honor your request. On the other hand, if we are the designated Service Provider for any product or service that is being offered to you, please direct your personal information requests directly to the company or other organization that has retained us as its/their Service Provider.

Sharing Personal Information for Direct Marketing

Sloan has adopted a policy of not sharing your personally identifiable information with third parties for their direct marketing purposes if you request that we do not do so ("Opt-Out Policy"). You may make such a request by clicking on the "Do Not Sell My Personal Information" link here, the "Do Not Sell My Personal Information" link that is displayed on the Site home page, or by sending us an email at dpo@sloan.com. When contacting us, please indicate your name, address, email address, and what personally identifiable information you do not want us to share with third parties for their direct marketing purposes. Please note that there is no charge for controlling the sharing of your personally identifiable information or for processing this request.

California's "Shine the Light" Law

If you are a California resident and have provided personal information to a business without an Opt-Out Policy, you may be entitled by law to request certain information regarding disclosures of personally-identifiable information made by such business to third parties for the third parties' direct marketing purposes during the immediately preceding calendar year ("Disclosure Request"). Such business is not required to respond to more than one Disclosure Request per customer each year, or to respond to requests made by means other than through the contact information designated by the business for such purposes. However, please note that due to Sloan's Opt-Out Policy described in the preceding paragraph, we are not obligated by law to provide you with the requested information.

If you are still interested in making a Disclosure Request, please contact us at dpo@sloan.com. In the Disclosure Request, specify that you seek your "California Customer Choice Privacy Notice." Please allow thirty (30) days for a response, but note that Sloan is entitled by law to respond to your Disclosure Request by notifying you of your right to prevent the disclosure of personal information pursuant to our Opt-Out Policy.
